Whether you are a local reader of San Diego Gay and Lesbian News or you live a bit further away, Hale Media would like to wish you and those close to you the happiest of holidays.

Here is everything we covered this week from news to entertainment to local events.

ENTERTAINMENT

Comedienne and director Penny Marshall died this week, she was 75. Perhaps better known in the golden age of sitcom television as the first half of the comedy duo "Laverne and Shirley," Marshall went on to become a successful movie director.

Point Loma's Natural Style Chicken makes a lateral move into a prominent storefront at University and Fifth in Hillcrest with a second location.

Our theater critic Jean Lowerison reviews "The Year to Come."

Naomi Smalls is no stranger to the Drag Race werkroom and neither are the other queens currently competing on the fourth season of All Stars, but Smalls has something they don't, a new music video.

Talk about comfort food, this Popeyes at the Philadelphia International Airport is helping nervous fliers ease their anxiety with a new promotion.

If the crowdfunding donation tracker is accurate, the world will soon be getting a web reality show which follows the lives and careers of a trans boy band.

Perhaps one of the only actors who looks like he hasn't aged in 20 years, Macaulay Culkin has reprised his famous role in "Home Alone" for a new Google campaign.

Angela Ponce became the first in history to compete in the main Miss Universe pageant as a trans woman. Over the weekend, Ponce was in Bangkok at the IMPACT Arena, having just contended with women from 94 other countries and territories for the coveted crown.

Marvel may have erased many things this year, but for the LGBT community their decision to remove any groundbreaking significance to the gay Iceman storyline has left loyal readers feeling dumbfounded and betrayed.
